

Elekta named one of the world's most ethical companies in 2019 by Ethisphere

Award honors those companies who recognize their critical role to influence and drive positive change in the business community and societies around the world.

STOCKHOLM – Elekta (EKTA-B.ST), a leader in precision radiation medicine, has been recognized by the Ethisphere Institute, a global leader in defining and advancing the standards of ethical business practices, as one of the 2019 World's Most Ethical Companies®.

In 2019, 128 honorees were recognized, spanning 21 countries and 50 industries. The honorees profoundly illustrate how companies continue to be the driving force for improving communities, building capable and empowered workforces, and fostering corporate cultures focused on ethics and a strong sense of purpose.

“Listening to our stakeholders plays a crucial role in fulfilling our company’s mission to continuously evolve our products and services in a responsible way that benefits investors, customers, employees and of course, patients,” said Richard Hausmann, Elekta’s President and CEO. “We put great value on adhering to our stringent business ethics, a key focus area in our compliance program. It is rewarding that our best practices have resulted not only in the trust of our stakeholders but in receiving this prestigious award.”

“Today, employees, investors and stakeholders are putting their greatest trust in companies to take leadership on societal issues. Companies that take the long view with a purpose-based strategy are proven to not only outperform but last,” said Ethisphere’s Chief Executive Officer, Timothy Erlich. “I congratulate everyone at Elekta for earning this recognition.”
